

THE MYSTERY OF LAKE WIGHT

My name's John and I'm eighteen years old. Two years ago, I was with my girlfriend spending a weekend in my parent's house in Lake Wight, and the things that happened to us there are still on my mind as if it was yesterday.

We arrived there at night. The place was dark and quiet and we decided to go inside the house to sleep. While we were sleeping, Samantha, my girlfriend, heard a loud noise.

At the beginning, we thought it had probably been an animal what had made that sound but we heard that sound again and it was becoming louder and louder. We started to feel frightened.

A short while later, I decided to go out into the garden. I was trying to find out what or who was doing that strange sound when I saw a large shadow behind me and then I felt a severe blow in my head and I fell on the ground, unconscious.

The next thing I knew was that I was lying on a bed. That room was a strange room with no windows. There was only a dull light next to the bed. While I was looking around, I realised that my girlfriend wasn't there and I hadn't known anything about her since I had got out the house. I was seriously injured but someone had bandaged me up. Moreover, I felt dizzy and everything was spinning around so I tried to sleep a little bit more.

When I got up, I saw a short woman standing in front of me. I asked her who she was and where I was and she told me that her husband, a woodcutter, had found me in the forest lying on the ground, unconscious.

Then, I decided to phone my girlfriend to know where and how she was. I dialled her phone number but nobody answered. So I went to our house but she wasn't there. After that, I went to the police station and told them what had happened. They made me sit down in the waiting room. There, I took the newspaper and I read: "Mysterious disappearances in Lake Wight". I became scared stiff... I couldn't believe what had happened to us...

At the present time, two years after it happened, the police haven't found any of the bodies that disappeared that day, and so, the mystery remains unsolved.
